

THE REST OF YOUR LIFE

Practicing, Painting, and Keeping Sane at 92

Practicing medicine since 1942, Dr. Robert R. Canas credits his painting and sculpture hobbies with “keeping him sane.”

“I was a general surgeon for many years, and after the pressure in the operating room I would come home and be very tense,” recalls Dr. Canas, who is 92 years old and now practices general medicine in Durand, Mich. “My wife used to tell me: ‘You are so tense. What’s the matter with you?’”

As a young surgeon in Panama, Dr. Canas transformed a room in his house into an art studio, where he went to unwind by creating works of art in various media, from acrylic paints and oils to watercolors, ink, charcoal, clay, and bronze. It became his refuge, and he created other studios when his career path led to stops in Birmingham, Ala., and Durand, where he’s lived since 1966. “I’ve always had a studio in the house,” he said.

His creations over the years have ranged widely in medium and in size, and have included a life-sized bronze statue of a railroad worker displayed in downtown Durand (an area rich in railroad history), a life-sized stone statue of Saint Patrick that stands on the grounds of a church in downtown Birmingham, and a large mural of religious scenes he

Dr. Robert R. Canas still paints 1-2 hours each day before heading into work at a medical clinic in Durand, Mich.

He painted this large mural of religious scenes on the sanctuary walls of a church in Birmingham, Ala.

PHOTOS COURTESY DR. ROBERT R. CANAS

Painted on the sanctuary walls of another church in Birmingham. “I went to Birmingham about 3 years ago to see that mural,” he said. “They keep it in very good shape.”

He painted another mural of religious imagery for a church in Durand that was torn down a few years ago, but he salvaged the mural and hopes to find another home for it.

Dr. Canas also creates works of art on request from family members, friends, and patients. Recently one of his patients brought in a photo of her granddaughter and asked Dr. Canas if he would paint a portrait of her on 24-inch by 18-inch canvas. “I’m going to do that; I’m going to get busy again,” he said, estimating that the portrait will take him 2-3 weeks to complete. “I don’t paint for money,” he added. “It’s absolutely a hobby.”

Raised in El Salvador, Dr. Canas began painting and sculpting when he was about 10 years old. He recalls no specific personal influence in pursuing art, just inspiration.

“You have to have an inspiration for something to paint,” he said. “Sometimes I get inspired by horses or other animals. I’ve also painted a lot of portraits. It depends [on] what mood I’m in.”

He describes himself as a realist inspired by Michelangelo, Rembrandt, and Velázquez. “I don’t like this modern stuff,” he said.

“All of my paintings are realistic; they’re not something that you have to interpret, and say ‘well, that looks like a horse or that looks like a parrot.’ I want people to see that’s what it is. It’s realistic.”

On most days Dr. Canas paints for 1-2 hours in the morning before heading to the medical clinic to see patients, where several of his paintings adorn the walls. “It’s like a small museum there,” he said.

The clinic also features a dedicated room where he can paint when it is a slow day or when there is a time gap in the schedule. “I think I’m a workaholic,” he admitted.

He considers his wife, Norma Gail, a “good critic” of his work. “When I call her in to look at a painting, she’ll say, ‘I hate to tell you this, but there is something wrong there,’ and the majority of [the] time she is right. She’s my back-up.”

Asked what it takes to be vital at age 92, he replied: “Find something to help you relax. If you cannot paint, go play golf. If you don’t play golf, go hunting or fishing, or do something [else].” ■

By Doug Brunk

CLASSIFIEDS

www.familypracticenews.com

PROFESSIONAL OPPORTUNITIES

San Juan Regional Medical Center in Farmington, NM is recruiting a BC/BE Family Practice Physician to join an existing practice. SJRMC is a non-profit, community owned 240-bed hospital, Level III trauma center serving the Four Corners area of New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and Utah. Enjoy world-class snow skiing, fly-fishing, camping, golfing, and more! Terri Smith tsmith@sjrmc.net 888.282.6591.
www.sanjuanregional.com
www.sjrmcdocs.com

Have questions on classifieds? Call Traci Peppers, (212) 633-3766, for more information.

Disclaimer

FAMILY PRACTICE NEWS assumes the statements made in classified advertisements are accurate, but cannot investigate the statements and assumes no responsibility or liability concerning their content. The Publisher reserves the right to decline, withdraw, or edit advertisements. Every effort will be made to avoid mistakes, but responsibility cannot be accepted for clerical or printer errors.

CONTINUING EDUCATION

STOP Going to Sales "Seminars"

Start learning one-on-one from Aesthetic Medicine Professionals.

Just like your practice, aesthetic laser patients are diverse. All ages, skin types, from all walks of life
Free Introductory Preceptorship No Franchise Fees Involved CASH Procedures

- Laser Hair & Spider Vein Removal
- Pigment Removal
- Acne/Scarring Treatments
- Skin Tightening & Rejuvenation Treatments
- Laser Skin Resurfacing
- Benign Mole Removal
- Wrinkle Reduction
- Tattoo Removal

INCORPORATE AESTHETIC MEDICINE INTO YOUR PRACTICE!

Thomas Sult, MD

Robin Sult, RN

Visit www.aestheticclinic.net
AESTHETIC LASERS, INC.
877-868-3757

KEEP UP-TO-DATE

Watch our Classified Notices for Post Graduate Course Information

FYI

AMA Claim Process Toolkit

The American Medical Association offers educational materials to help clinicians process claims more efficiently. The “Heal the Claims Process” toolkit includes resources to help doctors Prepare That Claim, Follow That Claim, and Appeal That Claim. Tools include template appeal letters and claim management checklists. For more information, contact the AMA by visiting ama-assn.org/go/pmc.

Tools to Assess Alcohol Abuse

The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism is offering a booklet and a Web site to help adults assess and change risky drinking habits. The “Rethinking Drinking” booklet and Web site offer information on risky drinking patterns, alcohol content of drinks, and signs of an alcohol problem. To download the booklet or use the Web site tools, visit <http://rethinkingdrinking.niaa.nih.gov>.

Older Adults and Alcohol Abuse

The National Institute on Aging and the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism are offering a booklet that addresses drinking in older adults. “Older Adults and Alcohol: You Can Get Help” includes information about alcohol sensitivity and aging, how drinking affects health problems, and how alcohol interacts with medications. To download a copy, visit www.nia.nih.gov/healthinformation/publications/alcoholbooklet.

Inhalant Abuse in Teens

The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration is offering a new publication on inhalant abuse aimed at teens. “Tips for Teens: The Truth About Inhalants” provides facts on the long- and short-term effects, physical and psychological risks, and legal implications of inhalant abuse. To download the document, visit <http://ncadi.samhsa.gov/govpubs/phd631>.